Dr. Sanjeev Vidyarthi is an associate professor of urban planning and policy and a senior fellow of the Great Cities Institute at the University of Illinois, Chicago. Trained as an architect, urban designer and spatial planner, his research interests span the fields of planning theory and history and globalization and development studies. Exploring planning and designing efforts in a wide variety of urban settings, Sanjeev's recent work has focused upon the meanings and purposes of planning for places. Over the last two decades, he has lived, worked and studied in the Middle East, Western Europe, and the United States while studying the case of spatial planning and development in independent India using a comparative lens and an insider/outsider perspective.
